Undergraduate Programs:  Higher Education Leadership

The Higher Education Leadership program in the Department of Educational Leadership and Research Methodology (ELRM) offers a course at the undergraduate level in leadership.

The LDR 2010: Introduction to Leadership course is a one-credit course built on a partnership between the Higher Education Leadership Program and the Division of Student Affairs. This course focuses on the basic foundations of leadership and on its application to college experiences in student leadership roles. LDR 2010 students are engaged in activities and projects that increase self-awareness through the exploration of values, beliefs, culture, and identity.

Plans are underway to offer additional interdisciplinary courses that will ultimately lead to a Leadership Minor. The proposed Leadership Minor will enable students to complement any major with a focus on leadership obtained from foundational courses from the Higher Education Leadership Program and interdisciplinary courses.
